We welcome Jordan's third Voluntary National Review as an important milestone in assessing progress made in implementing the 2030 Agenda.

As discussions on the post-2030 development agenda begin, we ask: What steps will the government take to build on existing best practices to institutionalize sustainable mechanisms for participation and accountability that ensure a pivotal role for civil society, youth, women, and local communities?